Advertisement for Samuel N. Rice, “Art prized above all price,” (includes poem, “To a Daguerreotype”) 1850
(keywords: Samuel N. Rice, 194 Canal, history of the daguerreotype, history of photography)

THE DAGUERREOTYPE: AN ARCHIVE OF SOURCE TEXTS, GRAPHICS, AND EPHEMERA
The research archive of Gary W. Ewer regarding the history of the daguerreotype http://www.daguerreotypearchive.org
EWER ARCHIVE B8500001

Published in:

SOMETHIN NEW!

SPLENDID
SKYLIGHT DAGUERREOTYPES
FOR ONE DOLLAR.

S. N. RICE,
DAGUERRIAN ARTIST,
194 Canal-street, between Hudson and Varick,
NEW-YORK.

Takes pleasure in informing his friends and the public generally, that he has recently fitted up one of the best arranged Skylights in the city, which in addition to other improvements, together with his long experience in the art, enables him to take likenesses an any kind of weather as faithful as one’s own image can be reflected in a mirror.

In boldness of tone and lifelike effect, in richness and durability of finish and color, (as well as in the absence of those heavy shadows which so often mar an otherwise good picture,) Mr. R. is inclined to believe his pictures are not excelled, even by the best of his three dollar contemporaries.

Engravings, Paintings, and other Daguerreotypes accurately copied.

Miniatures inserted in Lockets, Breast Pins, and Finger Rings, in a neat and durable manner, and warranted not to fade.

Hours for children, between 9 A. M. and 2 P. M., at which time their pictures can be taken, by a new and improved process, in three seconds.

LIKENESSES OF SICK OR DECEASED PERSONS TAKEN AT THEIR OWN RESIDENCES ON REASONABLE TERMS.

A SHARE OF PUBLIC PATRONAGE IS RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED.
TAKE NOTICE.—No 50 or 75 cent pictures taken here, as nothing is allowed to go out to the public that will not give perfect satisfaction, or reflect credit upon the Establishment.

TO A DAGUERREOTYPE.

Shadow of my departed friend! in thee
I trace the lineaments and mark the true
And faithful image of the loved and lost.
Thou ’rt all that now is left of her whom death
Has rudely snatched from my embrace—of one
Beloved as my own soul. E’en now methinks
I hear those strains of tenderness, so wont
To break upon my ravished ear from those
Dear lips. E’en now, methinks I see that look
Of love, so mildly beaming from thine eye.
But no! her lips are sealed—her eye is dimmed
In death; and thou alone—the faithful type—
Her other self—art all that now is left.
Blest be the day in which, e’er ’twas too late,
Despite procrastination’s subtle voice,
Those cherished features were transcribed.
Blest be the light by whose unerring ray
Was traced, indelibly, that lovely form.
And thou, which didst but such a trifle cost,
And which, to strangers’ eyes, so valueless
Doth seem—by me art prized above all price.

[End of text.]

EDITOR’S NOTES:
The bibliography of this title is somewhat difficult. While the 1850 edition is stated as the “third edition,” the title first appears in 1849 and is always bound with Porter Belden, New-York: Past, Present, and Future. The paired titles were published 1849, 1850, and 1851. One copy of the 1851 edition is stated as “5th ed., rev. and brought up to Sept., 1851,” implying multiple editions in a year.

EWER ARCHIVE B8500001
URL: http://www.daguerreotypearchive.org/advert/B8500001_RICE-DAG-POEM_1850.pdf
Document author: Gary W. Ewer
Creation date: 2009-11-24 / Last revision (proofread): 2016-07-09
Prepared from: original volume in the collection of Gary W. Ewer. Also available from Google Books. (http://books.google.com/books?id=b2coAAAYAAJ) The 1849 edition is available from Sabin Americana (Sabin 4410). (Subscription required; available at many higher learning institutions.)
Original spelling/punctuation/grammar generally maintained without correction. Any in-text corrections are bracketed.

The source text is Public Domain and may be freely quoted. As noted below, this document is copyright.

If citing directly from this document, please reference the Ewer Archive number and provide the following citation credit:

THE NECESSARY DISCLAIMERS:
The document creator has made every effort to insure the accuracy of the transcription. However, the information provided in this document is provided without warranty, either express or implied. The document creator will not be liable for any damages caused or alleged to be caused directly, indirectly, incidentally, or consequentially by the information provided by this text.

The document creator assumes no responsibility for accuracy of fact; the text is prepared “as found.” Factual inaccuracies of the original text are generally not noted by the document creator. If this text is used in academic papers, accuracy should be confirmed by consulting original sources.

The document creator also assumes no responsibility regarding the correctness, suitability, or safety of any chemical or photographic processes that may be described by this text. Many of the chemicals used in early photographic processes are extremely toxic and should not be handled without a thorough knowledge of safe use.

The opinions expressed in this text are solely those of the original author and are not necessarily those of the Archive editor. Some texts may contain derogatory words. Any such word is certainly one that would not be used today. The words remain in the transcription, however, to maintain truthfulness to the original text.