Research regarding miscellaneous topics

This file serves as the gathering of various citations deemed of interest by the editor regarding anything at all—it is the most general “catch-all” for anything I may wish to reference in the future. These are research notes only and are not to be construed as complete, authoritative, or comprehensive. The editor may amend these notes at any time. The editor welcomes any comments or additional information on this topic

On the topic of American landscape views:

Charles Edwards Lester, Glances at the Metropolis: a Hundred Illustrated Gems (New York: Isaac D. Guyer, 1854): 45. The comments appear under the topic “Wood-Engraving.”

Besides, we lack picturesqueness of subjects; our scenery is, most of it, very much the same type—it is all green.

Here, every thing is new, stiff, green hard and cold, in the artistic sense; our cities are fire-red brick, our parks all look just alike—the few that we have.
